ABSTRACT OF DISCLOSURE

The present invention includes a method for detecting model stamping errors during circuit simulation without the need for golden data. The method checks for model stamping errors by determining whether entries in model stamping matrices interrelate according to a plurality of preset rules before circuit equations are solved.